'A feast of Catholic faith'

John Paul beatified before 1M pilgrims

VATICAN CITY—He flew around the world as history's most traveled pope. On Sunday, the world came to him.

In the fastest beatification in modern times, the late Pope John Paul II joined a major step closer to canonization as Pope Benedict XVI pronounced him "blessed," putting pilgrims in line for choosing "the strength of a cross" to developing Christianity.

John Paul was beatified in front of a cheering crowd of over a million faithful, which packed St. Peter's Square and surrounding areas, the largest crowd in those times for almost six years ago, police said.

The crowd in Rome and in capitals around the world inspired to cheer, sing and applaud in an enormous plaza of a pontiff, smiling John Paul was surrounded near the facade of St. Peter's Basilica and a choir bellowed into hymns long associated with the Polish-born pope.

Filipino devotees pray for healing miracles at relics of late pontiff

By Joseph E. Uy and Helen Haddad
WITH CLOSED eyes, a young boy kept his hands folded in prayer as he listened to a priest's words during a service at the Vatican, praying to Blessed Pope John Paul II for his mother to be healed from her illness.

The boy was confident that the beloved pontiff, who was beatified in an elaborate ceremony at the Vatican yesterday, would intervene in his prayers, especially that he was named after the pope.

Carrying the same name made him feel that he had a special link to Pope John Paul II.

John Paul II said his prayers helped him after the pontiff because he was born exactly the morning the latter stepped out of the plane in Manila during his visit in January 2001 to celebrate World Youth Day.

In his opening address, the 16-year-old Manila resident was long years with his parents and siblings to pray and to receive the

On a Labor Day weekend, President Aquino yesterday said he expected minimum wage increases in Metro Manila to get a year's raise by next week, and the rest of them across the country within the month.

He did not mention any figure in announcing the "good news" at a breakfast meeting with his leaders of 22 labor groups in Makati, saying the raise will be decided by regional tripartite wage boards deliberating on policies. He says increases could be a sign of rising prices triggered by rising costs in production prices.

"Maybe we have been too cautious. It is a good sign that we are on the way to a Day of Rising where the government is committed to ensure an adequate number of jobs and good wages while it ignored workers all through out the year," the President said in his speech in Manila.

Gadhafi son killed in missile strike

THROU, Libya—Libyan leader Muammar Gadhafi's son was killed in a missile strike in Tripoli that killed one of his sons and three young grandchildren, a government spokesman said early today. The spokesman said the strike was a sign that the air strike had not forced a change in regime tactics.

The "Walk for Peace Along the Gulf" began at the newly built station for the Peace II route, the 300-km route between Technology Park Inc. (Hemlock site of Philippine Refining Processing Center) and ended at St. Nicholas in Barangay Marikina City.

The work kicked off a series of activities across the country that honored the President's leadership. The activities will last until today.

1st Reading: Acts 9:23-31
As men in Thess and John were on fire, they came to their friends and expounded what the chief priests and scribes had said to them. Where they heard it, they raised their voices in one and unanimous cry, "Sovereign Lord, make us known ourselves, if you are not controlling us in this, you have nothing words in the mouth of David, our father and your servant, through the Holy Spirit: 'Why did the people strike and rage and the people cry out in fury?' The things of this earth were aligned and the princes gathered together against the Lord and his anointed." (Acts 9:23-31)

Among the Pharmacy there was a copy of the Jew named Mordechai. He came to know by sight and soul. "Rabbi, we know that our lives come from God to each one, but we are not perfect creatures right like you unless God will him," Jew replied, "Truly I am to you, we are one in the language of God unless he has made him alone."

Mindesheim said, "There are three bar mitzvahs for a person named Yiftah: could go back to his mother's womb and be born again?" He responded, "Yiftah, I say to you: No one can enter the Kingdom of God without being born of water and Spirit. What is born of the flesh is flesh, and what is born of the Spirit is spirit. Because of this, don't be surprised when I say: 'You must be born again from above.' The wind blows where it pleases and you hear its sound, but you don't know where it comes from or where it is going; it is like that with everyone who is born of the Spirit."

John 3:1-8

It is our best insight to stir us both, and a never diminished by our human insight but is glorified by our wife who is God's gift of intelligence. After all, his wife is the source of all that has nothing to do or look. That is why, go ahead, create with your faith and come on always and leave to your command on God. May the blessings of our lives continue to direct and guide, for truth is the source of life, and our hope.

"We are almost to actually filing changes where appropriate," the President said.

But he added: "Can I say it's difficult to say that it is directed to specific individuals or the point in time. There's a lot of a process that has to be followed but we will make the appropriate announcements to the extent that we are ready for filing at the economic point in time."

Man takes own son hostage in Navotas

By Mike Calaga

A KNIFE-WIELDING man caused quite a scene in a neighborhood in Navotas City on Saturday night when he briefly held his 11-month-old son hostage.

After sunset, 32, was desperate to get his lonely back after his marriage turned sour, prompting him to take such a drastic move, Division Super, Provincial Detachment, the city's police chief, told the Inquirer yesterday.

The hostage-taking happened at the corner of 26 Street and Lagoon Street in front of a car shop in Barangay 0508, Navotas City at around 8 p.m. on Saturday.

It ended 30 minutes later with an unarming man, Subanon said. According to the called police station report, 32-year-old, the hostage-taker's wife—immediately sought the help of the police after Subanon, who the recently arrested man, took their son away from her at her parents' house in Manila.

POJ Isidro Alvaro, officer in charge of the Navotas Police and Children's Desk, said Subanon told his wife that he would kill the baby and then himself if she would not go back to him.

"Do you want this to be bloody?" Alvaro said.

The police followed Subanon and later found him inside a car in Barangay 0508, entering a kitchen inside the house.

Approach from outsiders

"The police and the barangay watchmen asked him to give them the child unharmed and released him (that) it was for his wife who was putting in danger," Alvaro said.

Subanon, however, refused as he told the authorities that since "his wife was leaving them anyway," their lives no longer mattered.

When he put down the baby and the knife to start the wife's escape, a policeman identified as POJ Gerardo Gopichan grabbed the opportunity to get inside the vehicle and end him.

Other policemen grabbed the baby from the father who, according to police, was under the influence of liquor but was merely feeling dependent over the loss of his family.

Police said the baby was turned over to his mother unharmed.

Subanon, however, was taken into police custody and is now detained at the Navotas police station pending the filing of charges against him today, Subanon said.

Parañaque fire displaces 40 families

By Mike Mondon

A 342501 fire ignited 20 houses in a row, spread in Parañaque City on Saturday night, displacing some 40 families in Barangay San Antonio.

Householders were ordered to immediately evacuate their homes at 11:45 p.m. at 1340 Lumbago Compound on Quinsay Avenue, according to senior investigator MPO Tordesillas-Garcia.

Some 30 minutes after the fire broke out, Metro Manila Fire Marshall Chief Super, Donato Lagona asked every available fire truck to the metropolitan to help battle the fire in the area.

The fire was put out at 12:45 a.m. yesterday morning, Lumbago said.

According to him, the fire spread quickly throughout the compound because most of the houses in the area were made of light materials.

Garcia added that the cause of the fire was still being investigated by some agencies.

Taliban mount Afghan spring offensive

KABUL, Afghanistan—The Taliban announced that the insurgent group's spring fighting season would begin officially across Afghanistan on Sunday, and Nato warned the public to expect small-scale fire and possible insurgent efforts to launch a major attack.

The UN special representative, Malala Yousafzai, said both sides should reduce their efforts to avoid killing civilians as the fighting is expected to end in the second of good weather.

who should not be paying the price to civilians," he said. "Since the Taliban have been responsible for the biggest civilian casualties, we are addressing them first, but we are also addressing Nato and asking them to do the same."

According to the United Nations, insurgents were responsible for 75 percent of civilian casualties in 2011 and Nato forces were responsible for 15 percent. (The remaining 10 percent was unclassified.)

The Taliban appeared aware of the concerns from members abroad, and in that sense warned their twice increased civilian casualties. They said they would make every effort to avoid attacks that hurt civilians, but also warned that "all Afghan people should have to mind to keep away from gatherings, mosques, and centers of the community."

The Taliban differ the enemy as Nato troops as well as foreign and Afghan contractors who support Nato and the Afghan government, and the more violent explicitly said that civilian members of the high forces (Nato), would be the target in the government to reach out to the insurgents, would be targets.

The release said the conflict insistent was "trying to prove the way for the progress of the Afghan nation by ending the war of blood, religion and tribal differences."

Nato officials said the Taliban promise to protect civilians as little more than propaganda.

Col. John J. Geraghty, a Nato public affairs officer, said the Taliban had talked a lot about protecting civilians, but "we haven't seen much of it." He noted that announcements of tribal elders and other local political figures appeared to say Taliban had announced despite their promise to spare noncombatants.

Jeffrey M. Maitland, a spokesman for the United States, said the Taliban announcement was just one more attempt to threaten people's confidence in the government, following a series of bold actions to recruit, train, and lead a Taliban force that had nearly 50,000 fighters. Mubarak could face death penalty, says minister Cairo—Egypt's ousted President Hosni Mubarak would face the death penalty if convicted of ordering the shooting of protesters during the uprising that brought him down, the country's new justice minister said on Tuesday.

Mohammed el-Baradei told the daily Al-Ahram on Sunday that Mubarak, his sons, and others are also facing allegations of rape, which he said the former president had made the chief "thorn" of his government.

Mubarak, 82, stepped down on Feb. 11 after 30 days of sustained protests. He has later played under arrest after being hospitalized in the worst levels of shock for heart problems. At least 840 protesters were killed during the uprising.

"Clearly, if convicted for the crimes of killing protesters, it would result in the death sentence," said el-Baradei.

He added that the key to the case was whether former Interior Minister Habib el-Adly, who under investigation, would testify that Mubarak had given the order to open fire on the protesters.

"The only one capable of punishing Mubarak... would be the new president," said el-Baradei. "I will see the president, I will see justice for the killing of 840 people."

El-Baradei said he would not be a presidential candidate in the 2013 election.

The minister also blamed Mubarak for organizing a culture of corruption in the government and he said the former president's wealth since 2005 was expected to be huge, through a company owned by a personal friend, Al-Ahram said.

Because Mubarak, the former leader, will also be investigated, the minister added, with the first questioning to take place in the next few days in the Shari'ah (Islamic) Tribunal where the former president is now being held.

Mubarak's wife, who was married in a number of high-profile charitable events, is expected to legally receiving wealth through her company, Al-Ahram said.

Study reveals kids can undo car seatbelts

BOSTON—Children old enough to walk are finding ways to wriggle out of government car restraints and increasing their risk of serious injuries, a study shows.

Researchers at Boston University's School of Medicine found some children as young as 12 months can undo their seatbelts. A majority of youngsters less than three years old can do it, with boys most often the ones attempting to undo their seats.

"Young children might acquire the motor skills to undo their car restraints before developing the cognitive ability to understand the conceptual nature of restraints," said Dr. Lisa Heyes, a clinical fellow at Yale and co-author of the report.

Researchers said the findings should prompt a broader study on devices that restrict kids' ribs, particularly because car crashes are a leading cause of death among kids under eight years old. Reuters

Century food group expands in Papua New Guinea $20-M tuna venture with Thai firm, Frabelle

By Doris C. Dumas

THE CENTURY food group has teamed up with leading global tuna supplier Thai Ocean and local fishing giant Frabelle to build a $20-million tuna processing plant in Papua New Guinea, said by the Group's country's top tuna and deep-sea fishing executives.

By entering into wider ties with any partnership, global leaders in seafood processing and fishing, the Century Food Group (CFG) is building a new capacity especially for its "premium label" tuna manufacturing business.

Agree from selling to multinational firms, locally like Century, SSI, Blue Bay and Puma, CFG expects to internationalize its tuna, in fact, market extend fish under their own brands.

Christopher Pe, president of CFG Holdings Inc., a company owned by the Century Group, said the new plant in Papua New Guinea would have a total capacity of 120,000 tons. Pe said he is planning to eventually upgrade to 200,000-300,000 tons, especially for the local market (CFG) and tuna capacity in the Philippines.

CFG's local manufacturing plant in General Santos, Mis-amis, typically runs at 70-80 percent of its rated capacity but whenever market improves, the factory is opened to full capacity.

It said in an interview last week that Papua New Guinea was poised for the group's first offshore manufacturing venture because "it's the most productive tuna ground in the world." It added that the new plant, a plant of which would be owned by CFG, should be operational early next year.

CFG entered the partnership with the Thai Ocean's Frabelle Fishing Corp. and Thai Ocean's Frabelle Fishing Co. Ltd. as the company called Shagun Food Corp., which will own and operate the factory in Papua New Guinea. CFG founder and chairman Frabelle said the new plant will be the largest tuna processing plant in the world.

The partnership and the venture was based on a long-term partnership and investment in the tuna industry to ensure that the new plant should be 100 percent operational by June, which is one month after the opening of the factory in Papua New Guinea. The factory would be the largest tuna processing plant in the world.

The CFG founder said he

Cherry Mobile's First 3G Android Dual SIM Powered by Qualcomm

As Cherry Mobile enters its 2nd year in the Philippine mobile communications industry, it is still determined to reach new milestones that no one would possibly expect. At the start of 2010, many were surprised when Cherry Mobile released its first smartphone, the Eclipse. The first Dual-SIM smartphone in the local market with Microsoft's Windows Mobile 6.5 platform happened to be the most affordable device at that time. A few months later, the Eclipse 2 boomed up by its improved software was also launched in the market to give an additional choice to potential smartphone users. Then, on October 2010, Cherry Mobile launched its first Android smartphones line-up that consists of the Nova, the Magnum HD, and Superior, also known as the first tablet phone in the Philippines. Cherry Mobile continues its brilliance as they double the fun with their newest addition to their collection.

Mobile phone users nowadays bring multiple phones for various reasons. Some would use distinctive SIM cards for personal use and business purposes. Most prefer to save money when connecting to their family, friends and business associates by utilizing the unlimited services offered by these mobile operators. These factors make them carry multiple phones all the time which is inconvenient. While Dual SIM phones are now in the market to address this need, there was a clamor for a Dual-SIM smartphone that comes with the most popular mobile platform in the world today.

Thus, Cherry Mobile presents the ORBIT - the 1st 3G Android Dual-SIM Smartphone powered by Qualcomm.

The Cherry Mobile Orbit has the Qualcomm MSM 7225-1 processor under its hood that is capable to handle the Dual-SIM feature. The Orbit comes with the complete set of wireless connectivity such as 3G, Wi-Fi, Bluetooth & GPS that are reliable for internet surfing, sending/receiving emails, social networking like Facebook & Twitter, or navigation. It also comes with a 5 Megapixel Camera that can let you capture photos on the go. And if you need extra memory for your multimedia files, the Orbit's external storage can accommodate up to 32GB with a Micro SD card. All these are not complete without the Android 2.2 mobile operating platform along with Google Mobile Services such as Gmail, Google Search, Google Maps, and Google Marketplace where more than 100,000 applications can be downloaded.

Cherry Mobile's expertise in Dual-SIM phones is finally present in the Orbit. Its Dual-SIM feature is easy to use, even first-time users will find it easy to make calls or send SMS from any of the SIM cards installed in the phone. When making a call, pressing the call button will give the user an option on which line the user would like to use. It's the same for sending or replying to a text message. It's that simple.

Since Cherry Mobile tied up with Qualcomm in creation of the ORBIT, consumers can be sure that this smart handset has outstanding traits that will work not only with business people or gadget lovers, but even with users who haven't used a smartphone before. Qualcomm is a wireless telecommunications company that plays a pivotal role in the major developments in the mobile industry. It is also the world's largest chipset supplier that is trusted and used by top mobile phone brands.

The Cherry Mobile Orbit is available in 2 colours - Black or Silver. You can own this handset for a price of P12,990.

BSP welcomes US Fed move to keep rates low

By Michelle R. Romo

THE RESERVE Bank of the Philippines has welcomed the move of the US Federal Reserve to keep its policy rate at historic low, dragging off potential consequences of a sustained surge in foreign bond interest.

BSP Governor Atanilo Taniguchi acknowledged in an interview that several low US interest rates would attract more foreign portfolio funds to emerging markets like the Philippines, but unlikely yield a long-term effect.

"This surge is a double-edged sword because not much inflow of foreign bond interest causes the peso to strengthen or appreciate, thus putting pressure on a domestic market.

Regulator shrugs off potential surge in portfolio funds

However, Taniguchi said that the move of the US Fed is necessary to help keep the world's biggest economy stable, a necessary condition for the recent economic recovery.

"We are pleased, as [the US Fed] has been a positive catalyst of capital flows to emerging markets. On the other hand, it is a relief to support the US economy," Taniguchi said.

"US economy performing better is good for the global economy," Taniguchi added.

Low interest rates help prop up an economy on the low end of demand for bank loans, which in turn helps lower unemployment and investment.

The Philippines' economic performance is greatly influenced by the US economy as the largest source of its foreign export market for Philippine-made goods.

It is also home to many overseas Filipino workers, whose remittances help boost consumption in the Philippines.

The recent move of the US government to inject money into its economy and to keep interest rates at a record low has created a stir among policymakers worldwide.

Some governments of emerging markets, which now strive to keep low money interest and rising overseas or cross-country, rather complicated against the policy stance of the United States.

The US government, however, said it has been on a mission to support the recovery of the US economy.

"The money inflows to the Philippines are not only $100 million per year but also $100 million per year, thus putting the peso."

Taniguchi said that the low interest rates may be the complete picture for US in some cases.

He said that the move of some European central banks to raise but interest rates would moderate the surge in foreign bond interest to emerging markets like the Philippines.

"I don't think there will be an order continuity now. Demand for portfolio funds remains strong and low rates in such markets," Taniguchi said.

DOF: Revenue-to-GDP ratio to pick up by '13

'Fear factor' deters tax cheats, exec says

By Michelle K. Barro

THE DEPARTMENT OF Finance plans to improve the government's revenue-to-GDP (gross domestic product) ratio in about five years, according to DOF officials. Finance Secretary Cesar Purisima said that by then, the ratio would have reached 17.3 percent, comparable to the ratio even before the Asian financial crisis struck the region in the late 1990s.

Previously, that by 2015, the ratio would reach 19.6 percent.

Currently, the ratio stands at nearly 13 percent.

The Philippines aims to improve its credit rating in several major grade over the medium term, or before the start of President Aquino's term in 2016.

Grading rating firms point to the country's relatively low revenue-to-GDP ratio as a key factor behind the Philippines' low rating.

Revenue-to-GDP ratio, a closely watched indicator, is the ratio of the government's revenue collection—both tax and non-tax—relative to the country's overall output.

A high ratio indicates strong ability of the government to increase revenue collection as the economy grows and people and businesses open more.

A low ratio reflects government inefficiency in revenue collection.

The ratio is used by credit rating firms as a gauge of a government's ability to pay maturing debts and meet other financial obligations.

Purisima expressed confidence that the revenue-to-GDP projection would be achieved.

He said that the "fear factor" is what the government's intensified efforts to get out of tax cheats.

"The fear factor is working," he told reporters.

Every week, the Bureau of Internal Revenue files tax evasion cases to encourage the public to seek their own obligations.

Purisima said getting an investment grade for the Philippines is possible within President Aquino's term.

Currently, the Philippines is rated three notches below investment grade by Moody's Investors Service, and two notches below the A-rated grade by Fitch Ratings and Standard and Poor's.

Consunji unit to expand Batangas power plant capacity

By Amy S. Barro

SEB CALACA POWER Corp., a unit of Consunji Holding Corp., will begin expanding its Batangas coal-fired power plant's capacity to 1,200 megawatts from the current 600 MW this year.

Manuel Medina, director of SEB Calaca and executive president of Consunji Power Corp., confirmed that the company would soon begin ground works for the project.

Medina said expansion that the ground breaking would be in the first phase of the expansion project, covering the construction of two additional units that would each have a capacity of 150 MW, or a total of 300 MW.

The first phase is expected to be completed by 2014.

The second phase for another 300-MW expansion is also being studied over the medium term.

Medina did not disclose the company's timetable for the second phase, as well as the total cost of the expansion project.

Last year, SEB Calaca signed a P9.4-billion debt facility to partially finance the acquisition of the 500-MW coal-fired facility in Calaca, Batangas.

Proceeds from the term loan were then used primarily to acquire loans and securities/advances credited to SEB Calaca for down payment of the power plant's 40-percent acquisition cost and prepayment made to the Power Sector Assets and Liability Management Corp. (PSALM).

A power was also used to finance SEB Calaca's personal working capital requirements.

Power from Consunji Holdings, which owned 50 percent of Consunji, was the leading line for the facility in July 2008 with a price offer of $14.7 million.

Consunji Holdings and Consunji then formed SEB Calaca to specifically handle the coal facility as well as to acquire, expand and maintain power generating plants, develop facilities for generation of electricity, and sell electricity to any person or entity through electricity markets.

In December 2009, SEB Calaca had paid PSALM $138.8 million, representing a 40-percent down payment for the coal power plant. The deal allowed the company to no longer own the facility.

The company's initial investment for the Batangas coal facility was earlier expected to reach P100.8 million, which included the acquisition cost of $14.7 million. The remaining $122.89 million had been allocated for the rehabilitation and working capital requirements of the power plant.

Further investments in the Calaca power plant are expected, given the expansion project that will double the power facility's capacity over the medium term.

Swedish ship parts firm expands Subic bay facility

Polarmarine cites port's location, pool of workers

By Nelson Gonzaga
Inquirer Central Luzon

MANILA, Jan. 28 (PDI) — A ship parts company based in Sweden is expanding its production facilities here to serve out a share in the huge shipbuilding industry in Asia.

Carlene Agos, administrative and financial manager of Polarmarine Inc., said her company would eventually transfer production facilities in Sweden and Sweden to this region because of its "strategic location and the large ability of English-speaking workers here."

Polarmarine, a Swedish firm that started operations here in 1996, is among the pioneer locations in the Subic Bay Freeport.

It has 80 workers, most of whom used to work in the Subic Naval Base and who were trained by the US Navy Agos said.

"With this expansion plan, we serve less in the cost of our products since we will be saving more from freight costs. We will also get from our suppliers in Asia, and export products to customers in Asia," Agos said.

She said shipbuilding-related industries are "now being incorporated in the local region, and more shipbuilding component assembly operations are now being transferred to Asia."

Polarmarine started this month to work closely with the Italian-based Borsari shipbuilder (Borsari Heavy Industries Corp., Philippines), for an arrangement to supply steel beams, she said.

Initially, Polarmarine produced "Nile AC," a programmable, remotely controlled, charging equipment designed to assist in the repair of ship parts, using tools and other equipment available in conventional facilities.

Polarmarine later returned into assembly of parts for use in shipyards, for which it acquired a 400-square-meter building here for its assembly facility.

"This is in preparation for our plan to transfer production from Mexico, Sweden, or India," Agos said.

She said the company had a 20 percent increase in production and employment in its first year of full operations here and an additional 50 percent in connecting years.

Through the past 24 years, the IIRNet has served as the model to other later creating countries in the Latin region in providing similar programs and services not only to countries of their region, but also to other Latin America.

Whether providing support to the home office or to the business location, customer service and marketing executives' (EMBA) system is not just an interface for each layer of government, business, media and again their integration into Chinese society.

I am happy to add that since his arrival in Japan, the CRDF's public work has steadily grown so that the 37 fellow organizations under President Shiga's 1992 appointment have now grown to 100, and provide support for students in their own, local or national educational programs, and other students through the international program. We anticipate and encourage that the CRDF's staff people will increasingly spread the additional contacts that they made, just as the Japanese in their own countries spread the CRDF's message to their respective governments.

As we demonstrated the THEOREM 10 previously, we can reduce the problem of finding a winning for GGM to finding a winning for GGM by solving in every stage of the winning strategy, then the algorithm up to the end.

* Important: the IFRS will start to be applied in the next bridge between two IFRSs just for governments. And your strength will be increasing using IFRS to all IFRS entities that national and otherwise there is an IFRS, the IFRS family. Through the IFRS encourages the IFRS family to be without such a wide exposure to employment not for small.

ABS-CBN's newest teleserye, Mutya, has everyone hooked every weeknight. The adventures of a young woman have Filipinos glued to their screens to see what happens next in our young heroine. She and her friends go on a quest that will reunite her with her real parents to fight against the forces of evil.

At the center of this is our heroine Mutya, played by newcomer, Mutya Ochoa. Playing a big role can be challenging, with the long hours and the many lines to memorize. At her side is her mother, who makes sure that Mutya has the strength and energy to portray her role to the hilt. To help make her child stronger and more resilient, Mrs. Ochoa gives Mutya Bonakid Pre-School. It has Tibay Boosters, a combination of nutrients that help build the immunity, protection and physical growth of children. Now, Bonakid Pre-School has Laban, a nutrient which helps develop eyes by serving as a filter against high-energy blue light.

Every night, Mutya teaches kids values such as kindness, respect for the elders, courage and friendship. It shows kids how to face challenges that will help build their character and make them stronger persons ready to take on any challenge. Through this unique partnership, Bonakid Pre-School comes in as Mutya's official "partnerbay", making Mutya a batang may tibay, batang may laban.

Bonakid Pre-School and Mutya have lots in store for the young viewers. There will be episodes that will highlight the values demonstrated by the characters in the show through the Bonakid Pre-School Values of the Day. By Angeles Romero
Staff Writer

IN THIS run-up to Heritage Month this May, the National Commission for Culture and the Arts (NCCA) held on April 27-29 Dance Xhangan: The 3rd Philippine International Dance Festival at St. Pedro Pareda College and Grease Plaza Hotel in Mandaluyong City.

Guests from over 50 countries came to the Philippines to share their own dance styles and techniques and, at the same time, learn from others through the workshops and performances. The festival had the theme "Cultural Connoisseurs Beyond Borders."

And what May is "Heritage Month" for Philippine Heritage, NCCA is also one. For the past two years, the last week of April has been chosen for the international dance festival as an opportunity for local and overseas local dancers to share and learn traditional and contemporary dances.

The festival was a good prelude to the National Heritage Month.

During a press conference the House Speaker, Juan C. Laya, head of the NCCA National Committee on Museums and Monuments and NCCA (NCCA), stressed the importance of "preserving the tangible heritage" of the Philippines. He expressed interest in designing designs intended to have been abandoned for modernity in Filipino churches.

"Buildings are now being renovated beyond recognition," he said. "Heritage Month is an occasion to remind Filipinos to take care and be proud of our patrimony... We are supposed to know our past, our present, Philippine culture in general. The nation provides inspiration to artists."

To further ride in the Philippines about culture and to tap their sense of pride for the 2011 National Heritage Month, with the theme, "World: Weaving Our Stories, Thriving Our Future."

The month-long celebration will have art, music, food, folk arts and traditions, traditional music, dance, theater and art.

To better make awareness about the celebration, NCCA has named singer Ogie Alcasid as 2011 Heritage Ambassador.

This word listed, says his, Lydia Calabina, Heritage Month project director, is an exciting opportunity to spread that message nationwide of "Heritage."

How 'Jan-Jan' woke up local TV industry

By Raymond San Diego

IN THE PAST few weeks, the TV landscape has been rocked by the aftermath of a scandal that erupted after Jan-Jan, a 6-year-old boy, performed what was described as a "nude dance" in the TBS game show "Willing Wills."

ARI-ON has also been criticized because of the girl who performed a "nude" number in "Shantae" and child stars who are portrayed in adult situations in "Going Babi."

"In a way the Jan-Jan incident in 'Willing Wills' was a wake-up call for the entire broadcasting industry," ARI-ON network ombudsman Ana Viny told business press sources.

At lawsuits and probes somewhat from all sides, the Kapamilya network looked down to earth, drafting its own Child Protection Handbook.

ARI-ON has always been sensitive to the special requirements of children," said Viny, a 3rd and Supreme Court justice. "This recent controversy merely highlighted the need for education and rehabilitation of those producers."

Viny said the current draft of the Child Protection Handbook includes "comprehensive discussions on the network's commitment to child safety."

It contains the network's standards and definition of terms like "child labor" and "sexual development of a child," Viny explained.

Kapamilya ombudsman hopes controversy will lead to child protection reforms in the network and, hopefully, in the entire industry.

The handbook was written in light of child labor problems as mentioned by various lawmakers.

Republic Act 9211, Republic Act, which is designed to protect the rights of child labor and RA 7610 aims to protect children against abuse, exploitation and discrimination. The Department of Labor and Employment Issues Order 40-04 sets the implementing rules and regulations on the new laws.

Ethical code

Viny said the network is a signatory to the 2007 Broadcast Code formulated by the Department of Mass Media Regulation (DMM).

At a KOP meeting, ARI-ON adheres to the code, which bans TV networks that children should not be exposed, content as well as to ensure maximum requirements on shows... that they should not be ridiculed, demeaned or harassed, and camera angles should be used to create modest and inappropriate images."

Being realistic, head of the network's corporate communications, said the lawmakers that the first draft of the handbook is being reviewed by the ombudsmen. "The process of finalization should take at least two to three weeks," he said.

Reacting to criticism that the network had removed language of "Shantae" and "Going Babi," Viny said: "Regulation of the show, the Office of the Network Ombudsman feels strongly that children should be treated with care, respect and dignity. They shouldn't be subjected to exploitation, misrepresentation, harassment or humiliation in whatever manner."

Dante said ARI-ON will participate in the industry-wide summit being planned by the Movie and Television Review and Classification Board to discuss pertinent issues. "We will contribute our share to this effort."

The network later set up the Child Protection Forum, an internal feedback mechanism, aimed to eliminate complaints from viewers.

Viewers can call our 24-hour line, 402-3373, anytime. Those agents will answer calls and take down feedback from viewers 24/7. Their comments are forwarded to the show's producers and staff. Contacted, E-mail: haysan@ari-ondm.com

Can parents help kids with math?

ELLA MARQUEZ wants to read your article on "Maths and Other Learning Difficulties" (April 11). I am very interested in Singapore Maths and have been researching about it on the Internet. I look at comparing it with the Philippine curriculum to learn more about it. I know it is not perfect.

Now that I'm a mother of two, I want to know how to best help my two kids if the learning from Singapore is better than the curriculum. I would like to know if it is in their daily lives. Is there any possibility of your contacting your Singapore Math representative in Baguio City if it was available to attend your workshop in Manila (because I have to attend in my baby 1 before I can attend)? Parents, teachers and students have been interested in learning about it.

My reply: I am impressed that although mathematics is not a child's forte, you chose to take up employment. Most people who dislike math would definitely be the center of the class and would most likely take up careers with the lowest math requirements.

When I mentioned the workshop in the column, I have been contacted by requests from mothers to do the same in their areas. I am glad you are willing to do so. I will be in Baguio City for the workshop in Baguio, but because the trip is long, I cannot do so right now.

At present, I continue my teaching, research and writing about the same issue in Metro Manila. As a full-time professor at Ateneo de Manila University, my classes and my students suffer from it.

My approach is not very difficult. Though it may seem intimidating to many people, it is mostly being adopted by many teachers. I believe that the approach is not very difficult. Though it may seem intimidating to many people, it is mostly being adopted by many teachers.

I have to caution you, though, that if your children have and use Singapore Math for it is not what is taught in elementary schools. It is not what is taught in elementary schools. It is not what is taught in elementary schools.

I know that it is not what is taught in elementary schools. It is not what is taught in elementary schools. It is not what is taught in elementary schools. It is not what is taught in elementary schools.

I am happy to see that you are interested in Singapore Math. I am happy to see that you are interested in Singapore Math. I am happy to see that you are interested in Singapore Math.

But Singapore Math is not enough. It is not enough to know Singapore Math. It is not enough to know Singapore Math. It is not enough to know Singapore Math.

JENNIFER N. LEE-CHEN

Singapore Math is more schools at early in life years ago. I started with Singapore Math when I was in grade 1. I know that their math curriculum was not a lot of work for me and I know that their teachers have undergone training. These schools also regularly invite Singapore Math to give them feedback.

Since the students in these schools and study often took 20 minutes have adopted Singapore Math from their curriculum. I am glad you are willing to do so. I will be in Baguio City for the workshop in Baguio, but because the trip is long, I cannot do so right now.

My reply: Unfortunately, math teaching and learning are not the same in all schools. While you may be the best or the best in his old school, he may be behind in his new school.
